

Physikalisches Kolloquium

An aerial photograph of a vast, arid mountain range. The terrain is brown and rocky, with several peaks. In the center, a large observatory complex with several white buildings is situated on a prominent peak. In the foreground, a smaller peak features a single, smaller observatory structure. The sky is clear and blue, with some light clouds near the horizon.

“First gravitational lensing results from KiDS: studying the dark universe with light rays”

Prof. Konrad Kuijken
Astronomy Research Institute
Leiden University

Freitag, 15.01.2016      17:15 Uhr
Kirchhoff-Institut, INF 227
Otto-Haxel-Hörsaal