

Ultimate photonics: one photon, one molecule

Stephan Goetzinger

Max-Planck Institute for the Science of Light, Erlangen

Novel concepts aiming at an efficient processing of information require a controlled coupling of single photons with single atomic quantum systems. In this talk I will discuss our efforts towards the realization of complex quantum networks and present experiments where photons and single solid state emitters interact strongly .